Added to the body not the parameters, params will be tacked onto the back of the url, similar to a "get" request login

Code:

```python
import requests
url = 'http://127.0.0.1:5000/login_page?'

data = {'username': 'admin', 'password': 'admin'} response = requests.post(url=url, data=data)
print(response.text)
